Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendment filed April 22, 2004 is acknowledged and entered.
2. Applicant's remarks have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
3. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. Claims 18, 22, 23, 27-29, 31, 33, 34, 39, 40, 44, 45, and 47 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Daniels.

The patent to Daniels shows a fluid dispensing tip comprising:

- an elongated neck (see Figure 3 attached herein);
- a bore machined in the neck along a longitudinal axis of the neck, the bore having a cylindrical input end at an input end of the neck and a cylindrical output end at an output end of the neck (see Figure 3);
- the cylindrical input end of the bore having a first inner diameter and the cylindrical output end of the bore having a second inner diameter, the first inner diameter being greater than the second inner diameter (see Figure 3);
- an inner taper machined in bore between the cylindrical input end and the cylindrical output end for transitioning the inner surface of the bore from the first inner diameter to the second inner diameter, the inner taper being proximal to the output end of the neck (see Figure 3);

Art Unit: 3752

- outlet vents 38 in the output end of the neck, the outlet vents extending radially from the outlet;
- wherein the output end of the dispense tip includes a relieved and beveled outer surface (see Figure 2) as recited in claim 22.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. Claims 21 and 38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Daniels in view of Poindexter et al.

The patent to Poindexter et al. discloses that methods for reducing surface tension effects are known in the art, for example, coating a surface with another material. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have applied a finishing process to the outlet vents in order to reduce surface tension as disclosed by prior art of Poindexter et al.

6. Claims 24 and 41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Daniels in view of Smith.

The patent to Smith teaches a grinding system for grinding a workpiece 4 in which tooling marks resulting from the grinding are substantially aligned with the longitudinal axis. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have ground the tip of the device of Daniels to form a bevel in which the tooling marks resulting from the grinding are substantially aligned with the longitudinal axis as taught by Smith.

7. Claims 26 and 43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Daniels.

Art Unit: 3752

It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to have located the outlet at a central position of the output end of the neck since such a modification would have involved the mere placement which is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art.

8. Claim 35 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Daniels.

It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to have made the fluid path output cylindrical in cross section since such a modification would have involved the mere change in the shape which is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art.

Allowable Subject Matter

9. Claims 19, 20, 25, 30, 36, 37, 42, and 46 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 32 is allowed.
